By P. W. DEMPSON

Edmonton Business Bureau

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—The government's present wage ceiling will likely be eased within the next few weeks after the new wage policy is to be effective early next year, it was learned Thursday.

The policy under consideration by the government is to turn back to the provinces the authority to look after minimum wages, and to release the national government's collective bargaining such matters as variations with pay and hours of work.

PERMIT ADJUSTMENT

Employers and employees would also be given the right to negotiate or decrease wages rates by a given percentage during 1946, without having to go through the National War Labor Board.

The labor department would not discuss what the percentage increase now being considered is, but it is understood it would be between three and five per cent.

Under the present NWLB order, all wage rates are to be negotiated through the board, which has no authority to grant wage rate decreases.

concerned. The Dutch information service, announcing the "decision" it was informal and "discussing" were of an emotional nature.

Lt. Gen. Sir Philip Chilton, Allied commander in the Netherlands East Indies, was last for the meeting and its chief architect. It seemed clear Britain was anxious to show that it could be scrupulously fair in arbitrating such differences and was anxious to show that it was not a power to her prestige in the East.

In a broadcast appeal to the Indonesians last night, Soekarno told the people to lay down their arms and follow all instructions in order to solve their differences in close co-operation with the British.

He said differences of opinion over territorial claims could be solved by peaceful means.

"NO REASON TO FIGHT"
There is no reason for us to take up arms against the allied forces, Soekarno said. They only wish to disarm and evacuate the islands and return to their homes and order in occupation areas.

His broadcast followed talks between Soekarno, unopposed cabinet and two Dutch government officials.

Just before the conference gathered an allied spokesman declared that the allied situation was "almost war." The fact that the talks had proceeded in an atmosphere of such tension led some observers to believe a solution would be found and that this was the first of a series of such conferences.

News of Alberta Sought by Many

Increase in the number of inquiries about Alberta news during the war is "tremendous," says D. E. Campbell, provincial director of publicity.

They come literally from all over the world; from the United Kingdom and continental Europe, from the Antilles and South Africa, United States inquiries alone numbered more than 75,000 in the period from September, 1944, to September, 1945.

Some of these inquiries, Campbell, have already materialized in immigration or less permanent settlement, for a proportion of the inquiries are retired heads of families and others in search of private summer playgrounds.

But the bulk of the inquiries are from prospective settlers or from those who are looking for a new home or a new business or a new profession or a new kind of occupation.

Partridge Flock Dives at Engine

It's not news when man hunts Hungarian partridges, but when the birds dive at the hunter's car, the situation is at least unusual, and to say something about it is just as important as the experience of C.N.R. employees.

As his passenger train neared Vancouver on the return run from Winnipeg Tuesday, a flock of "huns," apparently of the feathered variety, dived at the engine.

One, aiming for the cab window, plunged into the engine, struck Mr. McMillan's left eye. While the injury was not serious it was severe enough to require medical attention.

Finding himself in a strange atmosphere of levers, gauges and mechanical noises, the bird took off from the opposite side of the engine, leaving a few feathers as evidence of his uninvited entry.

Following a bandage over the injured eye, Mr. McMillan Wednesday expressed disappointment over not having caught the elusive bird for a mealless Tuesday delicacy.

Party Out Hunting With Bow, Arrow

The old Indian method of hunting with a bow and arrow is being tried out by five members of the Onayo Archery Club, an affiliate of Edmonton YMCA. The party has journeyed to Rocky Mountain House and will stay there for a week in search of caribou, deer and any other big game.

The idea is to use nothing but bow and arrow. The club's rifle was taken along in order to kill any animal, should it be identified from an arrow wound and for protection against attack by an infuriated bear.

Those taking part in the venture are Herb Alberts, Bob Cooper, Victoria Seiger and William Bunnell.

It permits an individual to obtain a new 5% bond at 100, which can be paid for at any time within 12 months. It requires a deposit of only 5% of the amount of bonds required. There is, however, this assurance, that should the signer of the letter find it impossible to complete the purchase, the bond re-marked for him will be sold on the market. The deposit with adjustments will be returned to the signer of the letter.
